Who Drives Innovation?

Innovation is primarily driven by the invisible styles and preferences of people

Builder - evolutionary - you do things for improvement

Connector - expansionary - you do things that are different

Pioneer - revolutionary - you do things to create NEW

You have..

Something Special,

You are not where you are because people like you.

You are where you are because you are making things happen.

A corkboard is covered with a variety of colorful sticky notes and papers. The notes are in different colors including yellow, blue, green, pink, orange, and light blue. Some are rectangular, while others are torn or spiral-bound. They are pinned with small, colorful pushpins. The central focus is a large yellow sticky note with the text "MAKE THINGS HAPPEN" written in black, bold, uppercase letters. The background is a textured, brown cork surface.
